The MacMammals are a Southern California based acoustic duo presenting an eclectic musical stew of sounds from Ireland, the British Isles, and North America, seasoned with a touch of bluegrass, and salted with some songs of the sea (arrghh!). From warm ballads to rousing sea shanties, their music weaves historical tales with folklore and humor. The "Macs" often draw from a musical "stable" of talent and are apt to feature a collaboration with some uniquely talented guest performers. Their selection of distinctive and rarely heard songs augments The MacMammals experience and delights listeners. Familiar faces at venues from Southern California to England, the MacMammals consist of Carol Schryver and Ron Bloom and will be accompanied by the talented Paul Marshall on bass. Carol and Ron have been performing together since 2004, each bringing unique backgrounds to their duo. Ron's expertise lies in traditional folk and folk/rock. He plays acoustic guitar, mandolin, Irish bouzouki, and lends warm vocals. Carol has performed Celtic and Appalachian music for over twenty years. Her vocal work is said to be reminiscent of Joni Mitchell and Judy Collins. She backs her sheer, genuine, and enchanting contralto vocals with guitar and, on occasion, accordion.
